MAMMOTH MUSK MELONS.

Produced at the French Gardens in Sixmile Canyon.

The Virginia Chronicle says:

Muskmelons as large as a five-gallon beer keg are now in the market. They are the product of what are known as the French Gardens, located about two miles north of Sixmile canyon road and one mile east of the town of Flowery. These gardens in early autumn are well worth a visit.

They are cultivated on the Italian terrace plan and fruits and vegetables develop as finely there as in the most fertile localities in California—but are not in the market until the horticultural products of the Golden State have disappeared.

The drive from Sixmile canyon road to the gardens is the pleasantest in this vicinity. The road follows the windings of a small stream, the banks of which are lined with willow, locust and poplar trees and carpeted with clover and water cress.

Staff Officers.

Governor Stevenson this morning commissioned the following gentlemen as staff officers of Brigadier General Boston: A. G. Fletcher, Assistant Adjutant General; E. B. Monroe, Engineer Officer; A. C. Brown, Ordnance Officer; LeRoy D. Brown, Commissary; S. J. Bryant, Quartermaster; T. V. Julian, Judge Advocate; George Hark, Inspector; George H. Thoma, Surgeon; N. W. Roff, Paymaster; Capt. George Hymers, Aid-de-Camp. All but the last named rank as Major. The latter ranks as Captain.

Death of J. R. Watson.

John Richard Watson, late Purchasing Agent for the Southern Pacific Company in Sacramento, died at his residence last week after a lingering illness. He was a native of London, aged 68 years and leaves a wife and two grown daughters, one of whom is Mrs. George W. Ellery. Mr. Watson was one of the early residents of Sacramento, and an enterprising and popular citizen.

Military Competitive Drill.

Governor Stevenson has issued an order for the State militia to assemble at Reno, October 4th, for inspection and drill. The State Fair management has decided to offer prizes of $150, $100 and $50 to the companies first, second and third in competitive drill.

IMPORTANT TO TEACHERS.
A Part of the School Law Declared Unconstitutional.

Hon. Thos. Wells, one of the Judges of the District Court of the State of Nevada, in a case recently tried before him in Nye County, decided that an Act entitled "An Act to Amend an Act to provide for the maintenance and supervision of the public schools, approved March 20, 1865," approved March 12, 1865, (Statute of Nevada 1865, page 109, Section 1, School Laws) is unconstitutional.

This last act purports to amend Sections of an Act which have been repealed by amendments approved in 1867, and 1873.

If this be so the decision will doubtless be sustained by the Supreme Court should the case be appealed.

As a matter of precaution it would be well for all teachers holding certificates granted in other countries that in which he or she is teaching which have been endorsed by the State Board of Education, and thus purporting to be good in any county in the State, not to rely on this endorsement, but at once get a certificate from the County Board of Examination, where teaching.

The position taken by Judge Wells amends several of the more important powers and duties of the State Board of Education and will cause more or less school trouble.

In this action Judge Wells is not to blame, because it is the duty of the Courts to declare the law, and legislators to enact them in compliance with the provisions of the Constitution.

CHARLES LAUGHTON.

How He Made His Nevada Campaign.

The Carson Appeal relates this: In 1882 Charles Laughton was nominated by Lieutenant Governor by the Reno S. Convention.

Laughton was a young man without any special experience in the affairs of State, and the point was made that he lacked the age and gravity. It was predicted that he would be beaten.

He immediately went to work on his own hook and made his campaign after the most original methods.

Charlie was a phenomenal violinist, and could do more tricks on the fiddle than anybody in the diggins, and putting his fiddle under his arm started off one morning telling his wife he wouldn't be back until he was certain that he had cleared up his fight.

Not much more was heard of Laughton for some time. He did not ban the beaten paths frequented by the campaigners, but took to the little logging and mining camps. He would scatter a few hand bills announcing that he would speak at the red school houses from 8 to 9 and play the fiddle for the girls to dance from 10 to 12, admission free.

This sort of an announcement always drew a crowd and Charlie would open his speech something like this: "Ladies and gentlemen. About a week ago I ascertained that the regular campaign speakers of both parties as well as the candidates had decided to give this place the go by, because it was a small place and the go miles off the reg'lar highway of campaign.

Mr. Chairman, no place is small in my eyes, where the heart of its people beat in sympathy for the prosperity and advancement of Nevada, where women reach her loveliest perfection, (applause) where men are natural born thoroughbreds, (cheers) and where every intelligent voter deposits his ballot on election day for the safety of the Battle Born State (cheers) and the regular R. P. candidate, ("unanimous applause")

Charlie was a graceful talker, and he soon had his audience. He knew when to talk and when to quit, and never bored his audience with talk and began to talk and aside campaign talk and began to talk his violin no one wanted to leave.

He would tell the boys to clear away the benches, and while they were doing so he was giving the audience the melting strains of "Laurel" in a style that they had never heard before, and every sweep of his bow, as the boys used to say, "lit them where they lived."

By the time the floor was cleared the audience knew that the man at the bow was "no slouch," and when the strains of the Misere were died away and the applause followed it would call out,

"Partners for the Basket Quadrille," and in a few moments more he was fiddling a merry tune, while the floor below him was all action and gaiety. Above the shuffle of feet and the lively jump of the music, his voice would sound clear and loud: "Side couples forward, Gent's circle to the left," etc., etc., until midnight.

Then the boys and girls would beg him to run the dance "one hour more."

"Do you guarantee me a Republican majority in this town? we would ask as he tuned the E string.

"We'll carry 'em for you two to one," would be the response, and the dance would go on until about daylight.

He went into every Democratic town in the State with his fiddle and conquered Bourbon with nuts.

"The Democratic party has more guts than brains," he said one day to the writer and then tapping the entree, significantly added, "I'll fight fire with fire."

He would up in the big towns on the eve of election, laid aside his fiddle, made a few good speeches and was elected by a handsome majority.

As President of the Senate he made a remarkably quick and fair presiding officer, and proved a master of parliamentary rule.

His experience here ought to prove very valuable to him for the office he is now aspired to, and which he will capture to a certainty.

Advice to Mothers.

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with pain of cutting teeth? If so, send at once and get bottle of Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for Children Teething. Its value is insuperable. It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately. Depend upon it, mothers, there is no mistake about it. It cures dysentery and diarrhoea, regulates the stomach and bowels, cures wind colic, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, and gives tone and energy to the whole system.

It is said that we have at present in the United States about two million Scandinavians, or one-thirtieth of the entire population of our country, one-half of whom are Swedes. A considerable number of these are found in New England.

The tarantula is a native of Italy, Cyprus, Barbary, India, and also abounds in Arizona, New Mexico and the far South and West. It lives on the ground, in a mud house which it builds, and to which it attaches a door by means of a hinge.

Inspecting.

James Mayberry, R. L. Fulton and D. C. Wheeler will start out to-day with Geo. Waterer, engineer of the Spring Valley Water Co., for a trip to Donner, Webber, Independence and other places to examine storage sites and the water question generally.

CELEBRATED MIDGETS.

SOME DIMINUTIVE MEN AND WOMEN WHO ACHIEVED FAME.

A Dwarf Who Killed His Man in a Duel. A Short Pole with a Long Name and Title—Our Own Tom Thumb and the "Matron in Miniature"—Hulda Bump.

Sir Geoffrey Hudson is used for the genesis of this article, not because he was the smallest of the long list of midgets who have appeared upon the stage of action during the past 300 years, but for the reason that he is the earliest of which authentic record has been preserved. He was born in the year 1616, at Oakham, Rutlandshire, England. He first attracted the attention of the Duke of Buckingham in 1628, he being then 9 years old and but eighteen inches high.

Little Geoffrey, or Jeffrey, as it is sometimes written, remained in the service of the Duke until the time of the tour of Charles I, king of England, through the different shires after his marriage with Maria Henrietta.

When the king and his now bride visited Buckingham, in order to serve their majesties with a unique surprise, Geoffrey, the dwarf, was inclosed in a large cold pie and served at dinner, much to the delight of the royal visitors.

THE DUEL ON HORSEBACK.

Her majesty was so pleased with the pranks of the little elf that she was allowed to take him with her to London. Soon after this event he began to grow rapidly and soon shot up to three feet; a calamity which he characteristically claimed was due to royal feeding.

Still he retained his position as court dwarf under the suggestive name of Lord Minimus, was present upon all state occasions and knew more, perhaps, of the affairs of the government than the king's ministers themselves.

He was sent to France to bring an attendant for the queen, she being a native of that country. While on this errand, thinking himself a dwarf of considerable importance, he formed the acquaintance of Mr. Crofts, a young man of high social standing and position in France, who teased the poor little Crofts beyond the bounds of reason. Being a courier when at home he naturally resented the treatment of young Crofts, which finally became unbearable, resulting in a challenge from the dwarf.

When Crofts and his friends appeared at the scene of rendezvous Crofts was armed with a squirrel gun filled with muddy water. This enraged the little Englishman to the extent that a real duel followed, the participants being mounted on horseback, which put them more on a level. Crofts fell dead at the first fire.

The remainder of the adventurous life of Hudson reads like a romance. He was for some time a slave in Barbary; afterwards, upon his return to England, a captain in the royal army. In 1634 he accompanied the queen on a visit to France, but after the behest of all this royal honor upon him he was sent as a prisoner to Gateshead, Westminster, having been suspected of being privy to the popular plot. He died at the Gatehouse prison in 1634.

BOROWSKI AND THUMB.

Count Joseph Borowski was a Poco. He was born in the year 1739; he came of a family of six children, of which every one was a dwarf. The first of the family was a son 3 feet and 4 inches high; then came another who was 6 feet in his stockings after he had attained man's estate; next came Joseph, the subject of this sketch, who was but 27 inches high on his twenty-first birthday; of the last three that followed Joseph the first and last were of ordinary proportions, the middle one being a dwarf, who died at the age of 28, being then but 23 inches tall. Joseph became celebrated for his remarkable longevity as well as for the brevity of his stature, living to the advanced age of 98. After his tour through England he visited his native land, but returned two years later to the British Isles; married a lady of ordinary size, raised a large family and died at Bank's cottage, near Durham, in 1837.

About five years after the death of Borowski, in 1842, Tom Thumb, the most celebrated dwarf in modern times, although not the smallest by any means, began his triumphant march under the auspices of his patron saint, P. T. Barnum. Tom's real name was Charles Stratton. He was born in 1838, and was therefore but 4 years of age when put on exhibition at Barnum's museum, New York city. He weighed twelve pounds when first exhibited, soon became famous, and made his first trip to England in 1844, I believe, but it may have been a year or two later. He grew very little until after the end of his fifteenth year, then grew until he was 23. At the age of 30 he began to "fill out," and during his last trip west, in 1853, he stated his weight to be seventy pounds! Not much of a "midget," sure. He died at his summer residence, near Middleboro, Mass., July 15, 1888, aged 45.

THE WARREN SISTERS.

When Tom Thumb, the wife of the subject of the foregoing, was before the attention of her husband's patron saint, little Betsy Bump. When put on exhibition beside her future husband, at the New York museum, she adopted Layla Warren as a stage name. She was married to the little general at Grace church, New York city, in 1863, and was, therefore, just twenty years a wife.</
